

CYBUGS

First, my view has been turned downward. You never know where to find insects. I'm afraid to touch them. I slowly approach. So many hairs and so fragile. I take them carefully at the wings - bring myself to rip out wings and cut off the legs. The bodies are more and more familiar to me. I get more and more obsessed by the little unseen treasures. Each part is precious. I divide the insects and use every part. The parts are put together very well. I suddenly realize that I am doing something incredibly important. I make friends with the dead animals. I fall for the charm of the bee. I caress her soft fur. It's dead. No corpse.
